spen, in one of which we find the following notice of the "But what of the Queen?' you will say; 'and how does se look!"—so natural is curiosity about one so young, and is accidental heir to such a fortune. A lady too! Well, I affirst tell you how she does not look. She does not look he any one of the thousand portraits I have seen of her.

inters may call them resemblances, but they are not like Sully's is a fine picture, but too magnificent. The Lona artists have made numberless attempts; the windows are w she does look, they must come to London, as I have oc, and take a good long look at her. She was twentyht hair, smoothly dressed off her forehead. Her teeth do | sion to use it. or show as in her portraits, though I suppose they do a lit-when her face is at rest. I should call her rather pretty; here is a decided expression of gentle, innocent, girlish weetness in her countenance—just such a face as one who saks on it may well remember for a day, and pray that it suy never be clouded with the cares and splendid misery of a station such as hers. I do not know that hers is a crown it thorns; but I thought, and perhaps she thought, as she and and wicked attempt, not long since made near that very pot, to assassinate her and her husband, by a boy of eighteen. "Prince Albert is decidedly a handsome young man; and lough he wears the abominable mustachios which almost stalize the faces of three-fourths of the fashionables here, eappears to be a modest, unassuming, quiet, family kind of personage. He keeps himself entirely clear of the poliparsonage. He keeps himself entirely clear of the poli-ics of the day, and is never spoken of by any one except as be Queen's husband."

ortuguese built brig, which had been captured as a slaver, mishes the following details:

On the 19th of February, 1341, lat. 22 30, long. 40 West Cacupos, on the Coast of Brazil, about 13 miles, observed a arge brig standing in for the land, altered our course so as ocut her off if possible. On approaching she appeared not nhave the least idea of our boing a man of war—allowed set to close within range of our 32 pounder; fired a gun werher, and another as quick as possible ahead-she then up with her helm, attempted to run, but appeared in great

We continued to throw the shot over, ahead, and astern of without intention of striking, as we were positive of dates being on board, after a short time she was increasing by distance; Lieut. Foote then determined to put a shot ato her hull, but with great regret, on account of the unformate beings on board. Shots were then thrown close under set et nucle—a third was about to be fired, when we observed her round to. In about twenty minutes we came up and boarded her. The slaves were all below with the hatcheou; on turning them up, a scene presented itself, enough a scene here even of a Portuguese.

some antertunates in the most disgusting state of small pox, in the confluent state, covered from head to feet, distressingly ill with opthalmia, a few perfectly blind; ashers, living skeletons, with difficulty crawled from below, analyte to bear the weight of their miserable bodies. Mothers with young infants hanging at their breasts, unable to give them a drop of nourishment. How they had brought them thus far appeared astonishing. All were perfectly maked. Their limbs were excertated, from lying on the hard place they are the principal periodicals kept on hand for the sale.

John-tone, mate of the Fawn. We sailed on the 16th of May 7th 130, well provided with medicines and directions in hat manner to use them. Tapioca and lime juice were also provided. Notwithstanding all the care that a small crew would bestow on them, we unfortunately lost twenty, chiefly from scurvy and general debility. This unfortunate brig left Bahin fort, on the coast of Besguela, with 510 negroes, and, hirteen days after, on her capture, she had but 375!

GEN. EBENEZER MATTOON .- This venerable old gentleman, upon whom nearly ninety years have dawned, vited to attend the Commencement at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H., which occurred last Thursday. He has just recovered from a severe fit of sickness, and now appears, says the National (Claremont) Eagle, "as healthy and vigorous this advanced age, as if the weight of fifty years were renoved from his shoulders; and notwithstanding his total lindness, seemed to enjoy his journey quite as much as when he traveled the same road as a college student. He was graduated at Dartmouth in the class of 1776, just 65 years go. He informs us that he was one of four students who were examined for a degree a few weeks before the usual time of graduation, for the purpose of leaving college and 'Liberty Boys' then proceeding to Canada against the British. Two of the four, having each received fifty timeas and a commission in the British army from the com manding General, deserted the American flag. Gen. Ma bon and his associates received their diplomas from the Faculty of Dartmouth while they were in Canada. WE HAVE FOUND IT OUT!-We were puzzled to tell why E was that our orators of the present time were so much more long-winded in their speeches than those of former years, until we saw it stated that there have been added to our language since the days of Johnson and Walker some forty-five thousand words, or about double the number origially included in their dictionaries. Now, as these words must be used, it is not to be expected that a man who gets up to speak in public can do less than occupy double th time that was customary when there were but half the words in use that are at the present time. And so the wonder is [Norfolk Herald.
